

PSY 308 : Research Methods in Psychology

This course provides students with a detailed understanding of experimental, observational and survey research methods. Emphasis is placed on framing research questions, defining variables and rendering them operational, sampling, assuring internal and external validity and drawing appropriate conclusions. Students design original research projects.

Credits 4

Prerequisite Courses

PSY 101: Introduction to Psychology

ENV 302: Community-Based Project II \(+lab\)

Semester Offered

Offered spring