

PBH 306 : Health Research Methods

This course prepares students to effectively assess and apply research evidence and skills in health studies practice. Students will be able to evaluate the quality of health data, conduct a literature review and apply principles of ethics. Research skills including study design and data analysis will prepare students to design and evaluate a research project at the undergraduate level.

Credits 4

Proficiency

QL

Semester Offered

Offered fall